Pid a little were research ofter your enail. At the Courthouse here in fell lity the only Deeds Mortgages for the name loby is for Arbert & L Doby & his wife Mary, as well at dead to & J & Chlor Doby. Deveral deads were between eg & hobert & Mary. My guess would be that eg is the golesh floty in the 1900 Census with his parents pobert & Mary. Also, I assume e.g. is the one named "for forby". The older residents of talked to so for only yearing for John orby. It appears his son for Noby now still be alive if Augusta, Heargia per the stat for Chlor Roby Little. Tiss to note, the 1910-20 30 Centus for fobert & L Doby stated he was a general merchant. Arbert & Mary heeded their property with Buildings (Inssume Aloby Store) to & J & Chlor Roby. Arbert Poby way help locate a century but contacting for Poly vi Augusta nay by of help.

HISTORY OF ST. CLAIR COUNTY (ALABAMA)

by Mattie Lou Teague Crow declared unconstitutional — for the establishment of a branch county seat in Pell City. He was also at one time mayor of the town. Colonel Spears was married to Florence Eugenia Mitchell, and they were the parents of three daughters: Hortense, Eugenia, and Pratt Spears.

Another unforgettable pioneer was James L. Garrett. He came with his wife, Sally Hindsman Garrett, to Pell City in 1905. He was a great politician. He was a Populist, and when that party ceased to exist, he did not return to the Democratic Party, but became a Republican. He served eighteen years (three terms) as circuit clerk of St. Clair County. Mr. Garrett was a Baptist lay leader. He loved all-day singings and singing conventions — especially the sacred harp singers. In years gone by, Mr. Garrett, James Ragland, Leroy Truitt, Austin Hazelwood, and Lester Smith sang together. Mr. Garrett's daughter, Mrs. Eula Garrett Vinson, was their accompanist.

Another of Pell City's best remembered citizens was Solomon Davis Kilgroe, who was born in 1861. He loved the land and thought every individual should own a bit of it in order to be a good citizen. At the time of his death he owned and operated nineteen small farms. His life did not lack variety, as he was an active member of the First Baptist Church, a politician farmer school bascher railward agert banks in the section.

Luker was clerk of commissioners court. The building was dedicated on March 3, 1956. Master of ceremonies at the dedication was Pat Roberson, and the main speaker was Governor James E. Folsom, who was introduced by Circuit Judge Frank B. Embry.

On April 23, 1956, two neighboring towns, Eden and Oak Ridge, merged with Pell City. Eden was an old municipality which flourished in the 1880's when it was the "railhead" for the track workers along the Southern Railroad. Oak Ridge was a new town, incorporated in 1947 through the efforts of E. J. Doby. This merger brought the population count to 3,644. A third area, Avondale Mills Village, also became part of the municipality in September of 1956. Until that time, the mill village had never been within the city limits of Pell City, although the mill was. The 1970 census gave the population as 5,602.

The little village of Eden was once called Manchester. The name was
